Paragraph writing workbook

Plan a focused point, support it with an example and explain why it matters.

Choose a topic

1. One change that would improve your study space. 2. A small problem you solved with other people. 3. One way a library could better support students.

Plan your paragraph

My main point: _____

My reason or evidence: _____

A specific example: _____

Why it matters: _____

Write your draft

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

Model paragraph and review

Group work can improve a difficult project when responsibilities are clear. Different students can contribute different strengths, such as research, design or checking evidence. In our last presentation, dividing these roles prevented us from repeating the same work. Clear responsibilities made collaboration useful rather than confusing.

Check your own work

Underline the main point.

Circle a specific supporting detail.

Explain how the example supports the point.

Remove any sentence that changes the topic.

Check your verbs and punctuation.

Many responses can work. The model shows one approach, not the only correct answer.
